High School
1968*

Foreword

The "Ironbound" section of Newark is bordered by the Passaic River, Newark Bay, and Newark Airport. This is an area of production, of factories, mortar and steel. Industry and commerce thrive in this heartland of production.

The "Ironbound" is also an area of people, a melting pot of many different nationalities and races. Residential areas with neatly kept homes and stores can be seen along many treelined streets.

East Side High School lies in the center of the Iron bound. East Side's products are human beings who have in the past and will in the future take their places in every walk of life in our society.

*"This old anvil_____ the people, yes_____
This old anvil laughs at many broken hammers."*

*The quotations throughout this yearbook are taken from the poems of Carl Sandburg, the poet of the city, who died on July 22, 1967.

"Man is a long time coming"

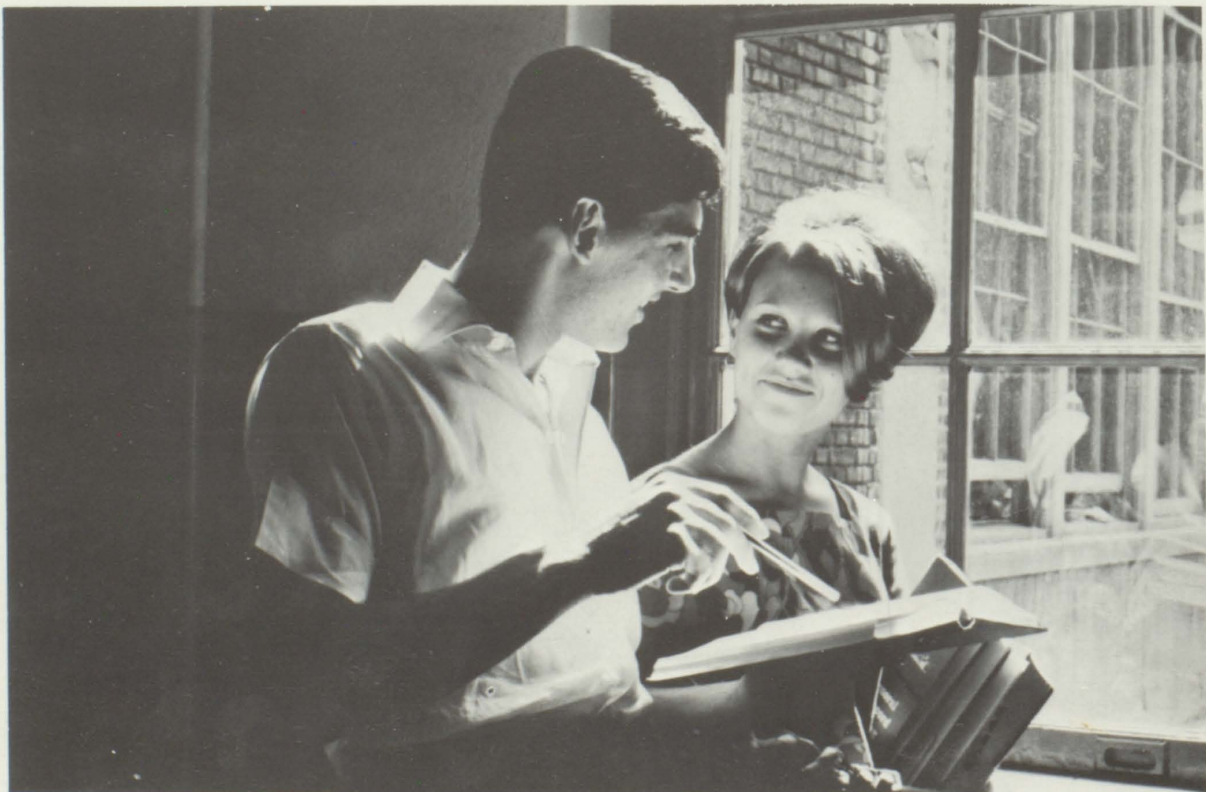

"Time is a great teacher"

"Who can live without hope"

"In fumes and dust, in smoke and cinders meeting production . . ."

*"We shall meet the inevitable,
We shall be prepared . . ."*

"In the daily labor of the people . . . either they must laugh or go down"

*"And so the people march
Where to? What next?
Where to? What next?"*

IN MEMORIAM

The passing of Tony Jannone saddened many faculty members and students at East Side High. A friendly smile, a word of advice, and knowledge were his to give. The effect of his teaching can only be weighed in the hearts of those he touched during his twenty years at East Side.

Mr. Leonard Chill, Class Advisor

There is someone special who devoted much time and work to making our class events successful. Someone who never said he didn't have the time to answer our questions, a warm and sparkling personality which never lost its special glow. His attention, patience and guidance we will not soon forget. Upon reminiscing about our years at East Side, even many years from now, we will remember with sincerest gratitude the dedication Mr. Leonard Chill displayed to us. Small in size, but big in heart, he will take a permanent page in all of our own little books of joyous high school memories—a page which could never be erased from our minds or from our hearts. Thank you so much, Mr. Chill.
